An Untold Story

The launch of this unique book was a huge success. Over 200 people attended the event and by the end of the presentation, I don't think there was a dry eye in the room. The authors showed courage and strength; they were an inspiration to us all.

Twelve women have bravely and earnestly documented their lives through interviews, poetry, prose and artwork. They tell of the abuse, pain and loss, but also you will read of exceptional courage and hope..... It is produced just as they told it!

This book is a powerful read and it is incredibly important for us to listen to what these brave women have to say.

Our hope is that the documented experiences of these women will open people's eyes to what really goes on, raise awareness of the extreme difficulties faced by women involved in street prostitution and change many people's perceptions of what their lives are like.

A number of recordings of the authors talking about the book and reading excerpts was recently aired on Radio 4's Women's Hour and the response from the public has been tremendous.

Here are a few quotes received:-

To listen to the stories of the women made a big impression on me and I congratulate each and every one for their courage and personal strength to transform hardship and suffering into change and new opportunities.

It's about time the general public were woken up from their stupor and confronted with the reality of just how awful and desperate a life these women have.

What an incredible organisation you are. I was so impacted by the fortitude, honesty, spiritual and emotional buoyancy of the women who have written this book. They are marvellous and a credit to the human race.
